My problem that I am solving helps people speak better, especially by removing stuttering from people who have a stuttering issue. I am designed to take the thoughts of people and put the words into the translator, which says the words without stuttering. This way, speech therapists can teach kids easier. The translator can detect when a stutter happens through feelings constant moving of the vocal cords in the same way before the words come out.